Question

Please provide all evidence and or data held by the SAS in relation to discussions with the Scottish Government and or other authoritative bodies with regards to a process known as 'toe tagging' as documented at the Scottish COVID-19 inquiry by paramedic Robert Pollock which occurred from 2020.

Answer

The Scottish Ambulance service is not familiar with the term toe-tagging as referred to by Mr Robert Pollock to the Scottish Covid Inquiry. On reading Mr Pollock's statement and his explanation of toe-tagging, the Scottish Ambulance Service are clear that this was not or ever has been part of our resuscitation guidance.
